

software as a service

System Source offers hosted email, collaborative communications, portal and thin client computing. Each is provided through secure, anywhere access without expensive client software deployment, upgrade, backup and maintenance burdens. Organizations often save on capital or operating expenses. Many report increased focus on IT projects valuable to its customers. Software as a Service also offers faster implementation versus on premise systems

“System Source provided Software as a Service exceeds our support expectations while satisfying security, reliability, backup and data integrity requirements.”
